President Jordan was given an ovation when he ascended the platform. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Dr.

seled the farmer to not "kill" the golden goose by putting up prices so high, as we will soon have active competition from other countries.

W. L. Foster, member of the Louisiana Railroad Commission, and a large cotton planter, responded. When Mr. Foster concluded, President Jordan delivered his address on "The Southern Farmer."

President Jordan began with reviewing at some length the objects of the association and its accomplishments. He referred to the discovery of dishoneat practices in the bureau of cotton statistics in the Department of Agriculture at Washington and the fight made by the association for purity there. He then discussed the reasons for the demand made by the association—eleven cents for cotton.

"The proper solution of marketing our cotton crop lies in moving the crop slowly so as to regulate the supply to meet the legitimate demands of the spinners. To do this, adequate storage facilities must be provided. With standard bullt warehouses, reducing the cost of storage an insurance to the minimum, and the issuance of receipts, guaranteeins grades and weights, and underwritten so as to make such receipts absolutely safe collateral, cheap money can be secured at any financial center whenever needed. These receipts can be sold direct to the buyers of spinners and the present primitive and costly system to the growers entirely obviated."

Concluding his address, President Jordan urged the wisdom and necessity for compact organization among the growers in every cotton producing country in the South.
